ARLINGTON — The 4-acre site off Randol Mill Road was worth $351,700, city appraisers in charge of assembling land for the new Cowboys stadium initially said. But to Evelyn Wray, whose parents moved there in 1935, the property was worth so much more.

A court-appointed panel agreed with Wray, 71, and awarded her $1.2 million, the largest price reported to date for a single-family property.

Wray has been the last homeowner in the stadium's path. On Wednesday, she finally started packing as bulldozers began knocking down trees by her home. She and her attorney said they plan to appeal the award, but a city official says Wray still has to move.
